

Christopher McCavitt, MA

Chris McCavitt is a Managing Director in EY's Boston office and leads EY's Business Intelligence practice. Chris is an experienced business intelligence professional who focuses on the use of open-source research to support forensic teams and missions, including global due diligence and third-party risk management requirements, and investigations. Previously Chris held senior positions in several leading global intelligence and investigations practices. Earlier in his career, he founded and led a private intelligence consulting firm that assisted multinational clients in managing a variety of risks in frontier markets.